My work is driven by an interest in questioning normativity and hegemonic ideas as they appear among friends and lovers, in art, cooking, language or politics. Lately I've developed an increasing interest in the format of the essay film. Despite it's disregard among some filmmakers due to it's break with the golden rule "show don't tell", i find that the essay film with it's lack of strict coherence, causality and continuity reflects both my confused way of thinking and the complexity and paradoxes within the subjects i choose to deal with.
